Of these sons only two are now living and they A. E. Smith, City Marshal of Cameron and Sam Smith, Deputy City Marshal of Temple.

Children surviving him are four sons as follows: Ernest Smith, Jim Smith, Harvey Smith and Sherman Smith now in the army. Also three daughters as follows: Mrs. Harry Pritchard of Thorndale, Mrs. Ernest Archer of Houston and Mrs. Moss of Harlingen.

Donates Brace to Newton Clinic Here

Henry Pilling who lives in the Elm Ridge community has donated to the Newton Clinic in Cameron, a neck brace which was recently used by his late father.

This brace is now available to all who may suffer a similar accident.

The brace was made in the Cameron Machine Shop under the direction of Dr. W. R. Newton, Jr., and was used with satisfactory results.

Mr. Pilling feels that this brace may serve as well in other cases and has made a valued contribution to the equipment of the clinic.

His father suffered a fatal accident on the farm when he was mangled by a hay baler. Among other injuries he suffered a broken neck and the brace was built here because no other could be had.

Man in Jail Here For Beating Wife

B. H. Rydell is in the Milam County Jail on a charge of beating his wife.

Rydell was arrested Sunday night by Constable Pete Harwell of Cameron and Constable George Gambill of Sharp. The Cameron constable told the Daily Herlad that Gambill called him and requested him to go along to the Rydell home near Davilla where they made the arrest.

Rydell was charged in Justice Court at Sharp and did not pay the fine assessed and was brought to Cameron and placed in jail.

Arrested for Theft Of Corn and Chickens

G. P. Touchstone of Silver City was arrested by Constable Pete Harwell on Tuesday about 10 a. m. at a car wrecking shop on the Slocomb Gin lot here.

Constable Harwell said he had charged Touchstone with theft of three chickens from a neighbor which he sold to the Fairmont Creamery Company, also 119 bushels of corn from L. C. Boyd at Silver City. He sold the corn to the A. N. Weems mill in Cameron.

He also sold a seed fork to Weems. Touchstone lived on the Boyd farm.

T. V. Adams of Buckholts was a Cameron business visitor Tuesday.

Officers Chase Man Thinking He Is Escapee From Prison

Officers in Milam county plus a highway patrol detachment and county officers launched a man hunt here Sunday and Sunday night.

The officers believed they were chasing L. C. Cobb, escaped convict and killer, but when the chase ended highway patrolmen ran down a Brazos county citizen who readily furnished proof of his identity.

Deputy Sheriff Le Roy Massengale said that the Bryan resident stopped his car at Branchville, got out and looked at the stores and into most of them then drove away to Maysfield where he stopped and repeated the same tactics except called for a box of matches at one of the local stores.

The man had a gun which he made no effort to conceal.

The officers were notified here that man answering the description of Cobb the escaped convict, was making his way toward Cameron. The officers went into action and a merry chase followed but the man was not located until sometime early Monday.

He lives in Bryan. His name was not known to the local officers. The patrolmen located him through the car numbers when the records at Austin were made available to them.

Cobb, murderer and life termer, escaped some days ago from a Prison Farm near Huntsville. He was reported heading this way and officers baracaded roads and bridges but no trace of the bandit was found.

Bell county and Temple officers were said to have been here Sunday afternoon.

Cobb was arrested for robbery of the Sharpe jewelry store in Cameron months ago but was not tried here because he was wanted in Harris county on a more grave charge.

BEER-WHISKEY SALE BANNED AFTER 12 A. M.

Acting upon the request of City Marshal Gene Smith, the City Council on Tuesday night enacted an ordinance prohibiting the sale of liquor or beer in the city limits between the hours 12 a. m. and 7 a. m.

Mr. Smith said that all save one of the sellers of beer had been observing the midnight rule, although no city ordinance had been passed.

This ordiance does not mean that places of business must close at midnight but does mean they cannot sell liquor or beer after that hour.

The ordinance also prohibits sale of beer or liquor at any place where dancing is permited after 12 a. m. and up to 7 a. m.

Places of business selling beer and liquor can resume sale at 7 a. m.

Mr. Smith said that the night police have work to do and many places to go and that too much time has been required to keep watch on places where people congregate at late hours and drink beer.

Mr. Smith believes the officers should have more time to devote to policing the city and the ordinance will stop the sale of beer and liquors after 12 midnight and relieve the situation.

Louie Cohen Badly Hurt When Struck By Truck at Store

Louie Cohen was at home Wednesday from the Cameron hospital where he was taken Friday night at 7 p. m. as a result of an injury sustained in the Green & Boedeker store.

Cohen had been in the store doing some shopping. He was standing at the checking counter paying his bill and as he stood there he was struck by a truck operated by an employe of the store on which a number of sacks of feed were being brought in from the side walk.

Mr. Cohen was knocked to the cement floor with the result that his right hip was badly broken. Mr. Cohen will be forced to remain in bed at his home for a long time and may never fully recover. His many friends sincerely regret to know of his severe accident.

ROOSEVELT REPORTS ON HIGH SEAS TALKS

President Roosevelt declared in a report to Congress Thursday that the world cannot survive for permanent peace except on the basis of the 8 point declaration made by himself and Winston Churchill when they met recently on the high seas.

He said that a short war is not to be exected, that the struggle will be long and bitter. He included freedom of religion in the broad outline of objectives.

The report was also a denunciation of the German government and leaders. It was the same pattern as that employed by Wilson who denounced the autocracy of German rule.

Mr. Roosevelt did not say who would win the war nor how. He has so far not indicated to the country what the United States will do to win the war.

Newspapers over the country are beginning to lambast the president for his failure to take action and by this is meanc war. The United States should now be at war, fighting along with England.

Germany was sweeping on to victory in Russia. The big city of Leningrad is now under siege.

J. B. Lane and Luther Russell of Milano received a diplomatic suspended sentence here Monday from District Attorney W. A. (Bill) Morrison. They were placed under probation.

In the old days penitence was punished in the churches by probation and a cretain amount of time spent agonizing at the bench.

Lane and Russell were arrested by Deputy Constable Ed Blackman in Milano for stealing gasoline from tanks on road grades belonging to the state.

They were in jail Saturday night until Monday morning when they were released under probation by the District Attorney.

Luther Alton Rockey and Miss Ann Ella Yates, were united in Matrimony Saturday afternoon by Judge Jeff T. Kemp. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rockey are residents of Maysfield, where they will make their home in the future.

WITH THE BAPTISTS

A traveling tourist through the Texas Panhandle got into a conversation with an old settler and his son. "Looks like its going to rain, remarked the tourist." "Wal, I hope so," replied the native. "Not so much for myself as for my son. I have seen it rain."

Most of us have seen big crowds at church and are in a like position with the old man, but many are like the boy, they have not seen things that ought to be an often sight to them. Attendance in Sunday School was 295, Training Union had 74 in attendance, and offering amounted to $142.19 which was only $50 short of our goal.

Baptists turned out in a good group for the united service Sunday night at the Methodist church. Many Methodist, Presbyterian, Christian and Tabernacle people gathered

Elephants Her Hobby; Has Display in City

Miss Lucille Blaylock has her elephant collecion on display at the Palace of Sweets. Miss Blaylock s hobby of collecting elephants was begun some years ago and thus far she has been very successful.

Her collection includes elephants in different shapes and sizes and from different states. These being from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Florida, Ohio, New York, Canada, California and New Mexico, and in quaint shapes such as vases, desk blotters, salt and pepper shakers and pin cushions.

Miss Blaylock is formerly of Granger but moved to Cameron three months ago when she accepted the position of Supervisor of the WPA Sewing Room.

Miss Blaylock says there is an old superstition in regard to elephants. If you just have one elephant it indicates bad luck and if the elephant's trunk is turned down that also is bad luck, so in this case, anyone that has one elephant may and it to the collection at the Palace of Sweets.

AFFIDAVITS NOW IN HAND NAME GRANGER MEN

Identity of the men responsible for the near fatal wounding of two fifteen year old Buckholts boys on the night of October 27th, 1935, near Buckholts, was established on Aug. 15th, it was disclosed here Tuesday when the parents of the boys placed in the hands of the publisher of The Herald information which had been sought for six years.

Affidavits from eye witnesses have just been obtained and it was largely through the efforts of Constable E. Horstmann at Buckholts that the guilty men were located.

Although the law of limitation operates in the case and no arrests can now be made officers are at last able to clear up the case and place the guilt on those responsible.

At the time of the accident it was believed the boys, Leslie Sakewitz and L. R. Abel, Jr., 15, were victims of a deliberate run down. They were walking along the roadside when struck. The case was given wide publicity.

Willie Reisner and Joe Michal of Granger were the drivers of the car that ran down the boys and made them cripples for life.

By agreement between themselves and friends who arrived on the scene of the accident that night, the matter was husbed up.

Constable E. Horstmann of Buckholts obtained a lead in the case over an arrest for chicken theft and a quarrel between two families. From this meagre information the case was solved.

Paul Sakewitz and Louis Abel, fathers of the boys, now have the affidavits on which the identity of the men is established. They requested publication of the facts in the facts in the case after they had been told by Judge Graham Gillis of the District Court here that the law of limitation now operates and the men cannot be prosecuted.

Leslie Sakewitz then 15 and now 21, will be a cripple for life. He will never regain strength in his leg, so badly was it broken in the accident. L. R. Abel, Jr., then 15 and now 21, suffered a concussion and lay unconscious in a local hospital for 21 days.

At the time of the accident a reward was subscribed and this money was placed in the hands of R. F. Kaatz and this reward money is still in the Buckholts State Bank. It has been suggested that the money be distributed equally between the parents of the injured boys and Mr. Kaatz plans to do this within the next few days.

Mrs. Emily Abel made a statement before Judge D. R. Criswell, Justice of Peace at Buckholts. Three other affidavits are in the hands of the publishers also, one each from Mr. and Mrs. Sam Miller of Buckholts and one from Mrs. Emilie Zalesky of Granger.

The Miller affidavits bear indirectly on the case and helped officers to establish the guilt of Reisner and Michal. The substance of these affidavits will be published in Wednesday's Daily Herald and will be included in the weekly Herald in full.

Is your name Mrs. Emily Able?

Yes.

Are you Joe Plsek's daughter?

Yes.

How long have you been married?

Since 1937.

Who were you with on the night the two boys were run over near Buckholts, Texas, on that night when you went or rather started to a dance at Buckholts?

I was with Florin (Max) Reisner of Granger, Texas.

How many were in the car you were in?

Four.

Who were they?

My cousin, Emily Slavik, now mar-

Ernest Sharpe Tells About His Projected Trip To Moscow; Cameron Enjoys Story of Interesting Journey Begun in Lisbon; With Diplomatic Corps

I'm positive the train must have had a direct connection between the smoke stack and my compartment, because the smoke didn't just drift in—it boiled in, all night long. Two or three times during the night I had to brush the soot from my pillow, and when I arose and cleaned up the next morning, the towel I used looked like a service station roller-towel which had hung on the roller for six days.

But I forgot my hardships in wathching the Spanish landscape. We were well into Spain, in fact approaching Madrid. The terrain reminded me of West Texas. Villages were few and far between, but scarcely ever were out of sight of a church. These churches were always the most imposing building in view, and this impressed me deeply, thinking of the day in which they were erected and the power the Catholic Church had in Spain at that time.

Soon we came to the outskirts of Madrid. There were the trenches grown over with grass where battles of the Spanish Civil War had been fought only a few years before. There was block after block of houses shelled and bombed into ruins. There were large brick buildings gutted by fire and walls blown away. The sight of all this was disheartening. Here the Spanish Civil War had been ended for two years and no reconstruction had been attempted.

Going further into the city, however, the damage from the war was much less. I was told that Franco had ordered as much of the center of Madrid to be spared as possible.

Arriving at the station gave me a pleasant sensation—the sort of feeling you express by saying, "So this is Madrid." Many times in the past I had read of this grand Spanish city, and little did I think I should ever see it. But here I was and here was Madrid, and it was hard to believe.

The common placeness of the station brought me back to reality. The station was old and a little on the run-down side. My first thought was that Madrid should be ashamed to bring its visitors into such a place, but I knew too at the same time that Madrid perforce had much to be ashamed to show visitors during these days.

We were met by a messenger from the American Embassy. It was a great relief to have someone take care of you that is, show you which door to take, where to claim your baggage, and take you to a good hotel. A strange railroad station is a baffling place even in the States, but in a foreign country it's even worse. You don't know who to ask questions, and when you do see an intelligent-looking soul, you can't make him understand.

But Juan, the messenger, was equal to his job and after almost having a fight with two porters for trying to put our baggage in the wrong truck, he had us on our way to a hotel.

The Hotel Nacional was nice, as hotels go. All that Henderson and I wanted was a place to take a hot bath and two soft beds. After writing our life history at the desk for the Spanish police, we were shown to our room. We tested the beds, matched to see who would bathe first and ordered some coffee. Soon we were feeling more like clean human beings, had managed to drink the beverage brought us—it was far from coffee—and were catching up on a little of the sleep lost on the "Rapido" somewhere between Lisbon and Madrid.

A telephone call woke us up shortly, and I answered it. An officer from the American Embassy was on the phone, and he said he had bad news for us. "What's the trouble?" I asked.

"You have no train reservations to Barcelona, and it may be a week before we can get some," was the reply.

I turned to Henderson and cussed the bad news to him. We already had our tickets for the trip across France purchased, and if we missed this train leaving for Barcelona, we would also lose the other reservations. We decided to go to the Embassy immediately to see if something couldn't be done.

Inquiring the address of the Embassy at the hotel desk, Henderson and I walked outside to catch a cab. Occasionally one passed, but invariably occupied. After fifteen minutes of fruitless waiting, we began to realize that we would have to do something more than try to look like diplomats in order to get a taxi.

Soon it dawned on us that there was a racket in practice which we would have to play. The few cabs that stopped near us and let out their occupants were always taken before we could get to them. The reason was that people wanting taxis were hiring small boys to go out and meet them as they slowed down. These street urchins would ask the driver to reserve the taxi for the person paying them. The drivers co-operated, I suppose because they knew how terribly difficult it was for the poor to make enough money to buy food, and if you wanted a cab you either got it through the street urchins or not at all.

We finally paid a small ragged boy whose hair was clipped short to keep the lice out to find us a cab. He said he could get one around the corner, and he ducked out after it, at least so we thought. But he must have hired the cab himself, for we never saw him gain. Well, after all these failures, we decided to walk, though someone told us it was a 45 minute walk, "maybe longer for the fat boy," they said, pointing to Henderson.

We walked the distance in 45 minutes, but Henderson said he probably wouldn't be able to make the rest of the trip to Moscow after such a strain and hardship. At the Embassy we conceived a way of going on to Barcelona that night. The courier had a double compartment, which meant that he had an extra bed. One of us could use that, and by slipping a few pesetas to the conductor we might induce him to make another bed on the floor. This plan almost fell through when we found that all first-class tickets were sold out. However, a few more pesetas and some prescious American cigarettes fixed that up.

By 2 o'clock we had everything settled and returned to the hotel. Lunch was good, though nothing to brag about. In view of the scarcity of food in Spain, however, we were happy to get such a meal. We were told that hotels and restaurants manage to obtain food somehow, though others go hungry.

After lunch we had only time enough for a short walk up and down a few streets of the city. A few hasty comments I might make from this stroll are by no means conclusive, because I didn'a see enough of the city, but I'll make them anyway. As for the damage done to the central part of Madrid by bombing raids during the Civil War, I saw comparatively little. Oh, there were some large buildings completely ruined, but not as many as I had expected to see. But of the damage done, it seems there has been no cleaning up or reconstruction. Many things about the city show need of repair. The street pavement is in bad condition, the boulevards are ill-kept, the statues and public monuments are neglected, and the rattling, rickety, rusty old street-cars look worse than the old Model-T delivery truck the Acme Steam Laundry used to have. In the residential section we saw some fine old mansions with beautiful lawns. With their high iron fences and "grand estate" appearance, we could imagine by looking at them what the city of Madrid was in its heyday. The size of the buildings, the elaborateness of the interior of a few which I saw, and the extent of the residential section in various directions made me realize that here was a metropolis—much larger that the Lisbon I had regarded as a good-sized European city.

One more observation before leaving Madrid. Henderson pointed out to me that most of the women and girls we saw on the streets were not wearing stockings. Of course, I told him, I hadn't noticed but would take his word for it. I'll leave this observation as Henderson's. The explanation, I think, for this is that there are no stockings to be had, or at least what is to be found is too expensive for most of the people to buy.

At 6:30 p. m. we left the hotel with the courier for the station. This was an hour and a half early, but the courier said it was necessary. We had to get the diplomatic mail on the train, bribe the conductor to allow three of us to stay in one compartment, and be prepared to meet any emergencies that might arise. The crowd of people at the station was over-flowing into the street outside. There were hundreds of people standing around waiting to buy tickets for the Barcelona train—soldiers with packs, old women with bundles of clothes, small children everywhere, working men in smelly jumpers, peasants with anything from a goat to half dozen chickens, girls with fans, soldierly station guards—a motley assortment of third-class travelers! The Embassy messengers put the sacks of diplomatic mail on a cart and ushed it through this mass of people, one going ahead crying, "Correo diplomatico! Correo diplomatico!' We followed in dignified fashion behind, and everyone stared at us as if we could part the waters of the Red Sea with a rod if we wanted to.

The conductor was taken care of, and promised to take care of us on the bed situation for the night. We pulled out about 8 o'clock, thinking perhaps it was the last time we should see Madrid. Reaching the outskirts of the city in the direction toward Barcelona, we saw that here again there was great damage from the Civil War. Block after block of ruins remained untouched after two years.

The courier advised us that the dining car served poor food, so we dug into our food box and had a good supper on sardines, crackers, and chocolate bars. Try digging sardines out of a half-opened tin with a small pocket knife sometime and you'll get an idea of how the main course was served that night. Then imagine keeping these pieces of sardines on a small cracker while the train rocks and jolts along. We found it expenditious to take a whole cracker at a mouthful.

We were all tired enough to sleep that night and paid less attention to the smoke than the night before.

GERMANS PENETRATING UKRAINE TERRITORY

German forces were rapidly penetrating the Russian Ukraine and were predicted certain to shatter the forces of Stalin in and around the Black Sea area.

The Russians admited severe reverses in this sector but claimed successes on all other fronts where fighting is intense.

Observers believed that the Germans are making a determined effort to capture Leningrad before the snow flies. Singnificant advances have been made in that area.

In Washington President Roosevelt told Congressmen that Winston Churhcill believes that the Russians have a better than even chance to stave off a German victory and that the campaign is certain to run into 1942.

Japan has been pleading with the United States to renew normal trade relations. The United States is reported to have dismissed any such suggestion.

It was regarded as likely the Japs will make some move within a short time to raise their prestage and to aid Germany by diverting Britain and America from the far east.

News of the war was without any decisive elements and all was quiet along the English channel and between Germany where recently air raids have been numerous.

Washington News
From Your Congressman W. R. POAGE

Matters have been moving rapidly in Washington during the past week. The House finally passed the tax bill after adopting the only amendment that was permitted under the rules—the amendment struck out the requirement for joint income tax returns between husband and wife. I voted for the amendment and against the mandates joint return clause. I then voted for the bill as amended. It is now expected that the Senate will spend a month or six weeks holding hearings and debating this measure.

Early this week both houses passed a Conference Report on the "Property Seizure' bill. This is the bill which provides for the seizure by the government of any industrial plant essential to national defense if the mangement of such plant fails or refuses to co-operate with the government in the production of needed defense articles. There was not much opposition to the original bill, but there was an effort to add a provision authorizing the government to take any such plant over if production was stopped by any cause (including strikes.) Personally, I think that the government should have exactly the same right to insist that labor co-operate as it has to insist that industrial management co-operate. I, therefore, voted for the proposal to make the bill cover all stoppages of production. However, as I have heretofore explained, there are a great many members of the House who are afraid to vote to require labor to do its part, and therefore the amendment was defeated. The vote this week was only on the original proposal. Of course, I voted for that because I believe every plant and every citizen should be required to do his part to defend America.

The House failed by two votes to muster the necessary 2-3 vote required to over-ride a vea when it considered the President's vea of the military roads bill on Thursday. I voted to over-ride the veto as did every member of the Texas delegation who was present and voted. This was one of the most peculiar and interesting votes I have seen in the House. The vote was sustained very largely by the votes of the President's enemies, including almost all of the leading Republicans. This bill was introduced and passed after the President himself had asked that provision be made for the development of necessary military roads. It seems to me that if we are to be able to use the army we are training to defend this country we must be able to transport it quickly all over the country, and particularly from point to point along our frontiers. Long ago the War Department worked out a nation-wide system of strategic highways which involves every state in the Union. The construction of these roads is most clearly a "defensive' investment. They never can be used for offense. Everyone also realizes that in order to care for necessary traffic in the neighborhood of the camps and defense industries there must be a great number of "access" roads built that have no relation to the normal needs of civilian traffic. The Congress therefore passed a bill providing $185,000,000 for access roads, emergenc reparis and flight strips (strips along and adjoining highways for the use of military aviation.) The expenditures and allocation of these funds was left in the hands of the President because there was no proper yadstick whereby it could be apportioned to the several States by Congress. However, the 125,0000,0000 provided for strategic highways was by the terms of the bill to be apportioned among the States in a way to assue each State of some work on the strategic network of roads. Inasmuch as the War Department has already decided on the roads that properly make up the strategic network, it seems to me that it was only proper for Congress to see that the money was fairly apportioned. As I see it, this is the only way we could make sure that we would not see a repitition of the situation that has existed in regard to the establishment of defense industries. The War Department and the O. P. M. have often given out public statements that they were going to decentralize industry and yet the great bulk of all the defense money has been spent and is still being spent in the same old industrial centers and the concentration of industry is becoming worse. Therefore, in order to prevent a repitition of this sort of thing it was necessary to put a provision in this bill assuring a fair distribution of funds. The President felt this to be unnecessary and insisted that Congress make no allocation of the funds. He also objected to the provision that Federal funds might be used to repair State roads that were injured or destroyed by troop movements. To my mind, this provision to reimburse the States for losses brought about by the Federal government is so obviously fair that it needs no discussion. As a matter of fact, most of those who voted to sustain the veto were those who did not want any appropriation for military roads.

The House has today begun the debate on the bill to extend the period of service for our troops. It will be seeral days before any vote is reached.

With best wishes, I am.

Yours very sincerely,

W. R. POAGE,

Congressman, 11th Texas District.

Far Northern Journey Ends; Local Travelers Return Home Thursday

Their journey at an end, Mrs. Oxsheer Smith and Mrs. Rush A. Thomas, returned to their homes in Cameron late Thursday after traveling 10,800 miles by pullman, plane and boat.

They left Cameron on June 29th for the Nortwest coast and from that point went to the mouth of the Yukon in Alaska and there took a boat and headed north up the Yukon River into Canada. It was a never to be forgotten voyage in the land of the Midnight Sun.

The beauty and vast solitudes are indescribable and they bring home many interesting stories of the great north woods where James Oliver Curwood found material for many of his books.

Each day the Daily Midget was mailed by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Smith to their wives and the Midget was delivered by air mail at given joints along the thousands of miles that stretch away up the Yukon to Canada.

CRIME SOLVED

ried to Joe Zaleski of Granger, Texas, and Florin (Max) Reisner of Granger, Texas, and I, Mrs. Emily Abel.

What did you do?

We stopped and saw what happened.

Who did you see?

We saw Willie Reisner, a brother to the boy I was with, Florin (Max) Reisner of Granger, Texas, and a boy named Joe Michal of Granger. They were parked right ahead of us when we drove up. I saw that the two boys were pale and looked like they were afraid. I told my cousin, Emily Slavik, now Mrs. Joe Zaleski of Granger, Texas, who was in the car with us, that I bet I know who ran over those boys. She said she could tell also. So we went on to the dance and while there, Joe Michal of Granger, left the hall in his car and I did not see him anymore that night. He left his partner, Willie Reisner there at the hall, I believe.

What kind of a car did that boy drive?

I believe he drove a Plymouth, green looking sedan.

What kind of car were you and your friends driving?

Model A Ford Roadster.

What happened then?

Well, we went and stayed at the dance, and I saw Willie Reisner on the outside when they had intermission, and he didn't come into the hall that night, so I asked him. "What in the world did you all do?" He told me to be quiet about it and not say anything about it. And later his brother, Florin (Max) Reisner, the boy I was with that night also told me not to say anything about it.

Did you tell anybody?

No.

Did you tell your parents?

I told them about the accident but didn't tell them who I thought it was, until a long time after.

This happened on Sunday night on or about the 27th day of October, 1935, didn't it?

Yes, I believe so.

Who did you see on the road when you drove up? that were hurt?

I think it was the Abel and Sakewitz boy.

Are you sure it was the Abel and Sakewitz boy?

Yes.

Who took you home that night?

Florin (Max) Reisner, Joe Zaleski and my cousin, Emily Slavik.

What time did you all go home that night?

About 12 o'clock.

Was Willie Reisner with you then?

No.

Where was he?

I don't know.

How many were in the car that Joe Michal drove?

Two.

Did they ever come back to talk with you about this anymore?

Yes, Joe Zaleski and my cousin, Emily Slavik came to see me, and they told me that they had talked to the Sheriff about the accident, and that he said for them to be quiet and not say any more about it.

You then believe that Joe Michal is the boy who hit the Abel and the Sakewitz boy do you?

Yes.

I, Mrs. Emily Plsek Abel, swear that all the questions read to me are the truth and fully answered, and that they are the truth and nothing but the truth, so help me God.

Signed: Mrs. Emily Abel.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 15th day of August, 1941.

D. R. Criswell,
Notary Public in and for Milam County, Texas.

The scene of the accident on the night of October 27, 1935, in which L. R. Tbel, Jr., and Leslie Sakewitz, 15 year old Buckholts school boys were made cripples for life, was near the R. L. Batte Gin on the out skirts of the city of Buckholts.

Supplemental affidavits made by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Miller of Buckholts and Mrs. Emelie Zaleski who was formerly Miss Emelie Slavik, have been obtained by Constable E. Horstmann of Precinct 6 at Buckholts, detailing information concerning the near fatal wounding of these boys.

The affidavits made by Mr. and Mrs. Miller were sworn to before Judge D. R. Criswell at Buckholts, and the affidavit made by Mrs. Zaleski was made in the presence of two witnesses, W. C. Dudik and E. Horstmann.

The Miller affidavits disclose that on or about Christmas day in December, 1940, Mr. and Mrs. Miller went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abel, Jr., who were living also in Abilene at the time and there Mr. and Mrs. Miller were told by Mrs. Henry Abel, Jr., about the accident in which the Sakewitz and Abel boys were injured October 27th, 1935, between the hours of 7:30 and 8 o'clock near the Batte Gin and on the right hand side of the road.

Mrs. Abel's affidavit was printed in the Daily Herald on Wednesday.

Quoting from the Miller affidavit which is a duplicate of the affidavit made also by Mrs. Miller, the following statement occurs: "And that she, Mrs. Emelie Plsek Abel was in the car that hit the two boys; but they went on toward Cameron and washed the blood off the car and cleaned the car clear of rags and cloth that were probably torn off the boys clothing. After they cleaned the car they came back to Buckholts and attended the dance that night."

Mrs. Abel, according to the Miller affidavit, said she was so nervous that she did not know what to do before they went home that night. Both boys were near death in the hospital and reports reached her that they did not have a chance to live.

When Mrs. Abel reached home that night she told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Plsek what had happened.

Continuing, the Miller affidavit says that Mrs. Abel, who was at the time Miss Plsek, said that later when a reward was offered by the people of Milam county in the amount of one hundred dollars or more for the guilty party who had run over the Abel and Sakewitz boys her father, Joe Plsek wanted to go to Cameron and tell the officers about the accident. The Miller affidavit recites that Mrs. Joe Plsek told her husband if he told the officers about that she would divorce him and that if he went to town not to come back, so he decided to say nothing more about it.

Mrs. Abel, according to the Miller affidavit said that she was a very restless and had been so all these years and she believed that God was punishing her because she failed to "tell on the boy that drove the car that night which crippled the poor little fellows who were on their way by foot to the dance for a little enjoyment." At this point in the recital by Mrs. Abel, according to the affidavit, she was weeping. Quoting Mr. Miller from his affidavit. "I felt very sorry for her. She told me the names of the boys but I have forgotten. She also told me that her father went to Rev. Server in Cameron to consult him on what to do about this matter and the Preacher told her father to tell the officers about the accident."

Constable Horstmann late Wednesday brought a statement from two wintesses to the affidavit made by Mrs. Emelie Zaleski which was obtained by Mr. Horstmann in his work to uncover this crime.

Mrs. Zaleski testified that she remembered well the accident on the night of October 27, 1935, when the boys were injured. She said that Joe Michal was driving the car that night when the boys were run down. She recites that he lived at Granger at that time but may now live in Temple. He is married and about 21 years old or more. Her affidavit substantiates the affidavit of Mrs. Abel printed on yesterday. She said that the other boy in the car was Willie Reisner also of Granger. Mrs. Zaleski was in another car that drove up a moment after the accident. Her statement recites that Joe Michal and Willie Reisner came up to the car in which she was riding and told her they did not see the boys they had just run down with their car until they were struck and was too late to stop, that there was another car coming down the road and the lights had blinded them. "They were about 100 feet or so ahead of us as we all were going to the dance hall. We talked about it and later decided that in as much as the officers told the boys to be quiet about it we thought it was all over with.'

These affidavits together with all information concerning the case were place in the hands of the publisher by Paul Sakewitz, father of Lesiie Sakewitz and Louis Abel, father of L. R. Abel, Jr. They had made inquiry concerning possible action in the case but were told by the court that action was now barred by limitation.

This information is published in the interest of clearing up a six year old mystery and the parents of the boys as well as Constable Horstmann, deserve much credit for the time and the expense to which they have been put to obtain the facts in the case.

Boys Who Stole Gas 15 and 16 Years of Age Says Morrison

Criminal District Attorney W. A. (Bill) Morrison said early Tuesday that J. B. Lane and Luther Russell who were placed in jail here Saturday night for stealing gasoline from the tanks of road graders at Milano are boys 15 and 16 years of age.

He said they were given their freedom under probation because at their ages they could not be tried for anything save juvinile delinquency. The policy he followed in this case is the same as that followed in all other cases.

It has been the custom of the District Attorney to show leniency in these cases. When the case was reported to The Herald the defendants were thought to be men.

COTTON

Trades Industry are co-operating with the Surplus Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture in an effort to increase the consumption of 100 per cent American cotton products by everyone.

Listing as typical examples of Army purchases of cotton articles, Mr. Cheeves said that as far back as March the Army had bought 7,300,000 pairs of cotton khaki trousers, 1,000,000 canvas cots, 2,400,000 mosquito nets, 1,700,000 rain coats, 300,000 canvas tents, 200,000 cook's caps, 10,000 cotton parachutes, 5,000,000 towels, 1,300,000 gas masks, 1,800,000 sand bags and 450,000 rolls of surgical gause.

"Increased cotton purchased by the government for the Army and Navy have not been the sole effect of the world war on American cotton, however," Mr. Cheeves said. "On the other side of the picture, cotton has lost virtually all its foreign markets at least for the duration of the war.

"Formerly the United States exported almost 7,000,000 bales of cotton a year to foreign markets. This year cotton exports will be less than a million bales," he continued. "Naturally this loss of markets has greatly affected the cotton industry. The only free markets remaining open to the eleven million Americans directly dependent on cotton for a livelihood are those afforded by this country. It is essential that we redouble our efforts to increase the domestic cotton consumption.

"By purchasing more cottons now, American consumers can assist the cotton industry in spanning this priod of temporary emergency when the co-operation of all is so greatly needed."

RADIO AND PRESS TO BE CENSORED BY GOV

Already strained relations between Japan, United States and Great Britain in the far East flared toward an open break again Monday as the Japanese controlled press charged that the Anglo-American alliance is attempting to bring about a war between Japan and Russia.

A government spokesman said that Japan does not want such a war. Russia has agreed to fight Japan and has become a full ally of the United States and Britain in the war on Germany.

Sunday the British government announced the signing of a trade treaty with the Soviet.

Japan was cast in a role of uncertainty. As the situation shaped up a risk of war with Britain was too much in view of the fact that the United States is represented as having retreated over far from the place where principles are staked in the far east.

In Washington Secretary of State Hull and the President were just emerging from a long conference on the situation.

It was announced also from Washington that President Roosevelt has decided to ask Congress to approve legislation already recommended by the War and Navy Departments for censorship of press and radio. It was explained that the legislation would enable the government to stop leaks in departments responsible for military information.

Eight candidates had filed their names for the general election to be held on Saturday, August 30th for Representative to succeed Reese Turner who resigned.

August 16th was the last date on which candidates could file. There were no tickets available Monday for absentee balloting. Supplies are purchased out of the city and tickets are furnished free. The county in order to avoid paying for ballots will order direct from printers in Commanche.

Judge Jeff T. Kemp was out of the city early Monday. Upon his return drawings for places on the ballot occured. The county clerk and Sheriff were the other members of the board.

Absentee ballots may be cast not more than 20 days nor less that 3 days before an election.

The paramount need of Milam county is fair treatment from the Highway Commission for Highways 77 and 36. Any candidate who succeeds should bear this in mind. Next July when he runs for the nomination he will have to answer for his lack of influence at Austin if no relief is obtained from the Highway Commission.

ORDER EASTERN STAR "GAY 90 PARTY" THURSDAY

The lawn was electrically lighted with cut flowers in vases and baskets adding charm to the shrubs where lawn chairs and settees provided a beautiful setting for the gathering of about 50 people.

Carrying out the 50 year ago time, many guests came in a wagon drawn by horses driven by John Hause of Curry. An old fashioned hunting horn announced the approach of the party with Bush Stafford blowing the horn. All appeared in the old fashioned costumes. A parade on the lawn was judged by three of the men with Mrs. Don Slocomb receiving the greatest number of votes for her outstanding costume, for the ladies present and W. H. Stafford for the men, with Mr. and Mrs. Stafford as the couple making the best hit, each of these two represented youth of that time.

Later a shower was hearalded on the lawn, and many beautiful gifts were persented to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Triggs, who are moving to Calvert next week. These were opened by the receiver, admired by all, and thanks were received from the receivers.

After the program ice cream and Angel Food cake were served on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Triggs expressed their regrets that they were leaving Cameron, but will still "call it home," and will make frequent visits back. Mrs. Triggs has been choir director of the Methodist church for a number of years; popular in social circles, and in the O. E. S. They will be greatly missed by many friends.

ALL FOREIGNERS ASKED TO GET OUT MANCHUKO

Taking violent exception to the 8 point declaration by President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill the Japanese government Saturday was rapidly approaching a declaration of war in the far east.

All foreigners have been ordered to leave Manchuko. On the face of this development it would seem Japan plans an immediate attack on Russia through Siberia.

A spokesman for the Japanese government said the conference between Roosevelt and Churchill and the 8 point declaration was aimed directly at Japan.

The war which is to follow shortly in the far east was laid directly to the Unitd States and Great Britain.

Many observers saw this as an excuse for a Japanese declaration of war on Russia and also perhaps United States and Britain.

The British were pouring troops into Singapore with all modern equipment.

Japan's entry into the war on the side of Germany was not un-expected. As an Axis partner Japan is expected to play an increasingly important role in the war. An attack on Russia in Siberia would have the effect of closing the Russian ports in Easter Siberia.

Friday Great Britain warned Japan that she will not permit interference with supplies being shipped to Russia through Vladavostok.

The United States is already routing ships to Vladavostok.

The next 48 hours or more was expected to bring the crisis to a climax.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY

The Baptists had their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday night which is their "all church family supper."

This also was a surprise birthday party for the pastor. A special table was arranged with a huge birthday cake in the center decorated with green and white. On each side of the cake were four green candles. As the pastor came into the room the crowd that was gathered sang "Happy Birthday" to him. The cake was cut and everyone received a piece. There were eighty present.

U. S. AND BRITAIN TO WAGE WAR ON GERMANY

The world stood expectant today over what many observers believe will be some kind of definite and conclusive action by the United States and Britain to destroy Nazi Germany.

A possible indication of what may have resulted from the conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain aboard a British warship in the North Atlantic, was the warning which was issued on Friday morning to Japan by the government in London in which the Japanese were warned that any attempt to interfere with the dispatch of war materials to Soviet Russia by way of Vladavostock in Siberia would be regarded as an act of war and this would bring Britain and Japan into open conflict in the Pacific.

Aid to Soviet Russia against Germany was regarded as the most important immediate objective and it was agreed that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt had discussed at length this new found weapon in the East to break down the power of the Germans.

It was believed that Germany will not be able to defeat Russia before the snow flies this winter and because of this fact efficient aid can be given to definitely stop the Nazi machine.

Joint action in the far east between the United States and Great Britain was forecast today as many thousands of finely equipped British soldiers were pouring into Singapore with all the weapons known to modern warfare.

For Liberty and Freedom, yes—but they needed land!

America's first hundred years saw it a refuge for the victims of persecution, both religious and economic. They came to America for Freedom, and they chose America because there was land. You had to own land before you could be free. They built the Democracy that made all men free, knowing that land gave them power to do so. The ownership of land is now a strength in our Democracy; participate in it!

LAND IS WEALTH

Once you had to be a landholder to vote. Once ownership of land was a requisite for the rights of citizenship. Now all of us take part in our government, but the yearning for the land has not left our people—lean the security of owning land . . . .
